

Baldwin & Clarke
ADVISORY SERVICES, INC.

Indecision: The WRONG Decision

“I haven’t decided what I ultimately want to do with my business, or when I want to exit, or how much money I’ll need, or whom to sell to, so how can I plan my exit? Besides, I don’t want to exit right now.” If you’ve said this, or thought it, you are not alone. Many business owners are either overwhelmed with the thought of exiting or are so busy fighting daily business fires that they think they cannot plan their exits.

Know that in your indecision, you are making a decision. As Winston Churchill observed, “I never worry about action, but only about inaction.” When you take a passive attitude toward the irrefutable fact that you will—one way or another—leave your business, you are deciding to settle for a least profitable exit for yourself and for your family.

If you are an owner who isn’t sure about what you want, or when you want to leave, why is it so important to decide to act today? Why can’t you wait?

- Preparing and transferring a company for top dollar takes time—on average about 5 years. Most of those years will be spent preparing the business for the transfer. If you decide to sell to employees or children (two groups who rarely have any money), they’ll need that time to earn the money to pay you for your interest.
- More time often equals greater reductions in risk. Time can be used to design and implement income tax-saving strategies, build value, strengthen your management team, begin a gradual transfer of ownership (not control) to key employees or children. If you wait too long, you probably won’t have time to implement these strategies and you’ll likely end up transferring your business on less-than-ideal terms.
- The market does not operate on your schedule and may not be paying peak prices when you are ready to sell to an outside party. Witness the state of the M&A market in 2008 and 2009: activity is almost non-existent in many business sectors and down in almost all.

If leaving a company you’ve worked so hard to build and having little or nothing to show for it, is unacceptable to you, let’s look at a few of your options.

Wait for a buyer. According to Deloitte’s Entrepreneurship UK: 2008 survey, 35 percent of business owners said they will wait for a third-party offer for their businesses. Owners in this group believe that one day a buyer will contact them, negotiate a sale, and that will be that. Well, this is a decision of sorts—but one that flies in the face of reality. While few businesses are being sold today, there will likely be a significant number of Baby Boomer business owners vying with you to sell their businesses when the M&A market recovers.

This issue brought to you by:

Chuck Baldwin
Baldwin & Clarke Advisory Services, Inc.
chuckb@bcasi.net
<http://www.baldwinclarke.com>

◆
The Baldwin & Clarke Companies have served New England entrepreneurs for over 40 years. Services include business valuation and consulting, M&A, executive benefit, wealth transfer and business continuity planning and retirement plan design and administration. Our membership in BET’s Network of Exit Planning Professionals provides access to The BEI Seven Step Exit Planning Process which has enabled thousands of business owners to develop and execute successful exit strategies.

Baldwin & Clarke
Advisory Services, Inc.
116 B South River Road
Coldstream Park
Bedford, NH 03110
(603) 668-4353
(800) 639-2711

◆
The Exit Planning Review™ is published by
Business Enterprise Institute,
Inc.

In a competitive buyer's market, only the best-prepared businesses sell for top dollar. And the owners of those well-prepared businesses will be those who made the decision to act to prepare their company years ahead of the actual sale.

Liquidate. Liquidation is a common exit path for owners of companies whose cash flow is flat and has little probability of improving—absent the design and execution of a business/exit plan. If you find yourself in this group, we recommend that you meet with your tax and other advisors to do the planning necessary to create the most tax-efficient liquidation possible.

Decide to exit and plan accordingly. Start today and take the following steps:

1. Fix a departure date.
2. Determine your financial needs.
3. Decide whom you want to succeed you.
4. Have your business valued to see if: a) should you sell today; and/or b) it has the value necessary to meet your financial and other exit objectives.

Based on your objectives and the realities of your business, use a skilled Exit Planning Professional to forge a plan with accountability/decision deadlines.

Deciding to do something now to create the best possible exit path is not difficult. The failure to act, however, can potentially be fatal to a successful exit. The success of your business exit is simply too important to you (your family and your employees) to leave to chance. Why wait? Why decide not to decide?

Subsequent issues of The Exit Planning Review™ provide unbiased and advertising-free information about all aspects of Exit Planning. We have newsletter articles and detailed White Papers related to this and other Exit Planning topics. If you have any questions or want additional Exit Planning information, please contact us.

Financial and estate planning concepts and techniques may be presented herein to illustrate how they can help achieve various goals and objectives. Some, by their nature, may also have income or estate tax benefits. However, their presentation is not intended to provide tax or legal advice. All concepts and techniques that may be contained herein should be carefully reviewed by legal and tax counsel prior to being implemented.

Circular 230 Disclaimer: To ensure compliance with IRS requirements, we inform you that any U.S. federal tax advice that may be contained in this article is not intended or written to be used, and cannot be used by any taxpayer, for the purpose of avoiding any federal tax penalties.

© Copyright 2011 Business Enterprise Institute, Inc. All Rights Reserved

Forward this email to a friend

Subscribe to this publication

Unsubscribe from this publication

Display this email in your browser