Aaron Sharabaika joined Baldwin & Clarke in 2018 as a senior member of the organization and as Managing Director in the investment banking group. Aaron brings a background in capital formation, mergers, acquisitions and corporate strategy. He joins Baldwin & Clarke from Robert W. Baird & Co., a global financial services firm, where he served as Vice President of Global Investment Banking. Aaron is a highly motivated finance executive and has executed on a wide range of M&A and capital financings, both in public and private markets. Under his leadership, Aaron has completed 55 M&A transactions and capital offerings in excess of $4.6 billion in deal volume.

“My passion is to help business managers, entrepreneurs and families achieve their financial objectives. I love working in a team environment and partnering with our clients to develop and execute on strategic opportunities that produce value for all stakeholders.”

He has significant experience in operations strategy, valuation, structuring and negotiating transactions across multiple verticals and industries, including financial services, manufacturing, business services and technology. Aaron’s M&A transaction experience includes buyouts, majority and minority investments, as well as mergers, acquisitions and divestitures. He has completed more than 25 M&A transactions in excess of $1.6 billion in deal volume. Aaron’s capital markets experience includes initial public offerings (IPOs), primary and secondary issuances of common stock, preferred stock, senior and subordinated debt. He has raised nearly $2.9 billion of capital.

Aaron has over 14 years of financial experience, including serving as an investment banker for 12 years and approximately 2.5 years of public accounting experience. Aaron began his career in public accounting with KPMG, LLP.

Aaron earned his bachelor’s degree in finance from Loyola University Chicago and a master’s degree from University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.
